

Table of contents

Introduction	7
Anne-Brit Fenner
Section A: Theories and principles
Communicative language teaching	17
David Newby
Learner autonomy – One of the most widely touted terms in recent discussion of language teaching?	27
Anne-Brit Fenner
Intercultural awareness as an integral part of foreign language learning	40
Anne-Brit Fenner
Integration of citizenship, human rights and language education	59
Ruxandra Popovici
Social and cultural awareness as overruling goals in foreign language course design	69
Ruth Pappenheim
Promoting intercultural awareness through literature in foreign language teacher education	78
Smiljana Narančić-Kovač and Martina Kaltenbacher
Teaching grammar and the question of knowledge	95
David Newby
Theories and principles – Conclusions	112
David Newby

Section B: Applications, mediation and implementation

The role of reflection in pre-service student teachers' understanding of communicative language teaching	121
Jacinta McKeon
Aspects of learner autonomy in the national curricula of four European countries	132
Nicos Sifakis, Tuuli Oder, Magdolna Lehmann and Dainuvīte Blūma
Case studies of integration of citizenship, human rights and language education	151
Ruxandra Popovici and Antonio R. Roldán Tapia
The why and how of human rights in language education	168
Ruth Pappenheim, Ruxandra Popovici and Antonio R. Roldán Tapia
A seminar on intercultural awareness and literature	170
Martina Kaltenbacher
Examples of teaching materials based upon authentic literature	175
Smiljana Narančić-Kovač
Grammar awareness-raising in an initial teacher education seminar	182
David Newby	