

A European learning network for professionals supporting work-related second language development

Photo: U.S. Army Corps of Engineers via flickR C.C.2.0: <https://www.flickr.com/photos/usacehq/5056771149/>

Language for Work is a European learning network for professionals teaching the language of the host country to migrants and ethnic minorities in work-related contexts. The network helps members share and develop their practice.

Resources

A website containing:

- a resource bank with practical materials and links to other relevant sites
- a community section for sharing news and expertise as well as for promoting collaboration and helping network members to shape future developments

What is particularly useful for me is the possibility to have access to an international network of professionals teaching a second language for work-related purposes.

Gorza Maisy - National Institute for Languages, Luxembourg

EN

FR

The resources are for

- teachers, teacher trainers
- researchers
- employers, trade unions
- policy-makers

Authors

Matilde Grünhage-Monetti, Alexander Braddell, Florence Mourlhon-Dallies, María Teresa Hernández García

In cooperation with
Moscow State Linguistic University

www.ecml.at/languageforwork

Take a closer look

The Language for Work resource bank contains documents relating to the development of policy, research and practice in the field of workplace language learning in Europe.

Un nouveau dispositif pour l'autonomie et l'efficacité au travail

Language: French

OPCALIA Propreté (2013). Un nouveau dispositif pour l'autonomie et l'efficacité au travail

Basic skills framework developed by the cleaning sector to support workplace learning

ArbetSam approach to workplace learning

Language: Swedish, English, Spanish, Basque

The ArbetSam project (2011-13) aimed to embed an innovative system of sustainable learning in adult social care workplaces in the Stockholm region of Sweden. With language development at its heart, the approach combined formal learning with non-formal and informal learning. It created two new roles, the workplace language advocate and the reflective discussion leader, and developed a range of practical resources (available in English, Spanish and Basque, as well as Swedish).

Linguistic integration of Adult Migrants (LIAM): Key terms

Language: English, French

Glossary with links to relevant resources (including research and policy papers). Part of Council of Europe's LIAM website. French version available/Version française disponible

The Community section of the website is open to anyone with an interest in language for work. Joining the network is quick, easy and free.

ADD A NEW RESOURCE

READ AND
ADD NEWS

SEE NETWORK
MEMBER PROFILES

www.ecml.at/languageforwork